Report of Farm Union Delegation

Following a meeting of the Inter-Provincial Council of the three farm Unions, September 8, it was decided that a small delegation should be sent to Ottawa at once. The immediate object of the delegation was to try and get some action on the wheat shipping situation which is assuming the aspects of a blockade in large areas of the West. This is particularly true of Saskatchewan where hundreds of elevators are completely full and no cars available.

The delegation consisted of the Presidents of the three Unions, Mr. J. Phelps, Mr. J. Shulz and Mr. Henry Young. On the way East, the delegation stopped at Winnipeg for a day and interviewed the Wheat Board on September 14. They were well received and several hours were spent in the discussion of various problems such as farm storage, payment of a percentage of the initial price on grain stored on farm, giving farmers the right to deliver grain at any shipping point, etc.

A visit was also paid to Fort William where conditions at the terminals were investigated.

The delegation arrived in Ottawa on Monday, September 17. Interviews were held separately with the following: Mr. Milner, the new Transport Controller, Mr. Gardiner, the Minister of Agriculture, Mr. Carson, Minister of Justice, and Mr. Chevrier, the Minister of Transport. At each of these interviews, time was taken for a thorough discussion of the issues involved.

The interview with the Transport Controller was particularly interesting. He informed us that the real cause of the grain congestion was not the lack of box cars but the large amounts of low grade wheat in storage at the terminals. At Fort William there were 21 million bushels of No. 6 wheat. The Montreal terminals through which nearly all wheat shipped via the Great Lakes has to be handled, are practically plugged with low grade wheat. At the present time there is a very slow demand for these low grades. Regarding box cars there are approximately 24,000 in service in Western Canada at the present time. Of this total some 12,000 are engaged in the movement of grain. However, assurance was given by the Transport Controller that in spite of these handicaps, cars would be made available at the points of worst congestion to enable farmers to market at least a part of their crop. After these various interviews the delegation left for the West the same evening.

The following subjects were discussed with the several parties interviewed:

1. Farm Storage
2. Initial price on farm
3. Parity Price on wheat sold on domestic market
4. Producer representation on Wheat Board
5. Grain Overages, 5-year period
6. Arrangements for voluntary regulations on Wheat Board for Farm Union dues.
7. Alternative delivery points for grain.
8. Early final payment of 1950 pool
9. More equitable distribution of box cars
10. Making maximum use of Port Churchill
11. Amending Agricultural Prices Support Act to include cereals.

As can be seen from the above, the matters put forward by the delegation covered quite a range of things vital to the farmers of the West. The attitude of the people we interviewed, leads us to believe that there will be some action on a number of these points before long. If this develops, even to a small degree, the work of this delegation will not have been in vain. If not, we shall have to devise means of putting on more pressure.

One thing is sure, we must get justice for agriculture. As a means to this end, there is nothing which would help as much as increased membership in the Farm Unions. Farmers have this in their own hands. Henry Young, Pres.

Turn First Sod For New College Dormitory

Camrose Canadian

Impressive services surrounded the turning of the first sod for the new Camrose Lutheran College dormitory which is now actually under construction. Quite a gathering of interested persons were in attendance. The services were led by Rev. Bergsagel, College Principal, the students leading in the singing of a couple of hymns. Pastor Rostad of Artna, the secretary of the Board, gave the scripture reading and introductory prayer.

Rev. Bergsagel in his inaugural remarks said, in part: "We are gathered here to mark the beginning of the construction of the new Residence for the Camrose Lutheran College. It is an event to which we have looked forward with a great deal of anticipation. Many plans and many blueprints have been made for such a building in the last 25 years. To us has come the joy of seeing the work actually begun."

"We are not here to dedicate or consecrate this ground. It has been set apart and dedicated many years ago by the faith of the pioneers who laid down their lives in the service, and in whose memory the appeal for this new building was first made."

"It is for us here present rather to dedicate ourselves to the task which lies before us and to the faith and to the ideals which must undergird this task. It is for us to pledge our loyalty to God and our Lord Jesus Christ in whose name this work is begun; to the church whose handmaids we are; to the College which is to the Community, of which the College is a part and which it must serve. It is for us all to be dedicated to the cause for which the College was founded; to hold forth the truth as it is discovered in God's creation and revealed in His Word."

"This is a great task and requires united effort. Represented here today are institutions and organizations which are most directly interested in the success of this enterprise, and I have asked them to turn a piece of the sod, thereby indicating that they are with us in this work."

The honor of turning the first sod was given to Mr. Thos. Brager who was a member of the original CLC Board which built the present college some 40 years ago. Then followed Arnold Hoveland, Past President of the College Bd. and now a member of the Building Committee; Mayor R. H. Hume, of the Town of Camrose; Ed Marken, representing the College faculty; Mary Hendrickson, current Pres. of the Students' Union; and Rev. C. Vinje, Principal of the CLC, which, like the college, is sponsored by the Evangelical Lutheran Church. Rev. Vinje led in prayer and pronounced the benediction.

SANDERS — WHITING

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Sunday, September 23 in St. Margaret's Anglican Church, Bradner, when Lena Amelia, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Whiting of Winnipeg, was married to Ross G. Sanders, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Sanders of Bradner, B.C.

The bride entered the church on the arm of Mr. A. J. Deadmarsh, uncle of the groom. She wore a blue crepe two piece suit with white trimming and white accessories. Her only attendant was Miss Harriett Sanders, niece of the groom. She was dressed in a grey suit with white accessories. Both bride and bridesmaid wore a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Mitchell of Ladner, attended the groom.

After the ceremony a reception was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. and E. T. Sanders where about twenty-five guests partook of the wedding breakfast. The couple motored to Pentikton and on their return will reside in Ladner.

Rain And The Soil

A NAVY ENGINEER who has worked for twenty years on soil conservation problems for the United States government has introduced a new theory in regard to soil deterioration. This is a problem which is very familiar to the people of the prairie provinces where various measures for soil conservation have been practiced for many years. Western Canada has known serious drought and soil deterioration problems and most of the people there are aware of the effects of these conditions on the land, and the welfare of the country generally.

Rain May Harm Farming Land

It is interesting to learn that the American scientist, W. D. Ellison, who has devoted so much time to the study of this work, has concluded that farm land may be damaged by rain as well as by running water. Rain, he believes, should be absorbed into the ground and conserved for the use of the plants in times of drought. When rain is held on the land by grass, crops, leaves, or the residue of previous crops, it is absorbed into the underground reservoir, when the land is bare the rain runs off, carrying with it valuable humus, minerals, and other essential elements of the soil. Mr. Ellison estimates that two to three thousand pounds of grass per acre are needed to protect pasture land from erosion due to rain.

Crops Prevent Soil Drifting

He suggests that the amount of grass on pasture land could be kept to this level if fewer cattle were allowed to graze per acre. He further suggests that on land which lies idle for part of the year, wheat stubble, stocks from corn or similar residue should be left on the surface, rather than plowed under. It has long been known that land sown with grass or crops prevents soil drifting, but Mr. Ellison's theory as to the need for the soil to be covered at all times in order to preserve the moisture from rainfall is a new aspect of this problem and one which will be of interest wherever there is need for soil and water conservation.

Outbreak Of Rabies In Animals Across Border

BRANDON, Man.—Officials of the department of health and public welfare in Winnipeg report an outbreak of rabies in animals in Minnesota and the Dakotas. No cases have yet been reported in Manitoba but people are asked to be on the alert. According to the department's bulletin, all warm blooded animals are susceptible to rabies. The disease is believed to take two forms: furious rabies in which the animal has a great urge to roam and become quite ferocious, attacking and biting without provocation; and dumb or paralytic rabies in which the infected animal becomes ill, seeks a secluded spot, becomes paralyzed and soon dies.

In the case of domestic animals, those suspected of rabies, should not be killed, but should be securely confined in a safe, cool, dry, place and provided with food and water regularly, and a veterinary surgeon or public health official should be notified immediately.

Rabies in the neighboring states has been most prevalent in dogs, cats and wild animals and particularly in skunks. The skunk population in Manitoba this year appears to be unusually high.

The bulletin emphasizes that there is no need for alarm. Manitoba has been free of rabies for many years and with early warning, steps can be taken to prevent an outbreak at this time.

The public is warned, however, not to handle any animal found dead because there are various infections which can be spread to humans in this manner.

TWO MEN AND A WOMAN

Peter Carew, master of the ditty at the Penthouse piano, tells about the husband who discovered his partner had been taking out his wife. "I'll be modern," the husband convinces himself. "I'll overlook it." Then his wife dies, and he and his partner are at the grave. The husband takes the loss very well, but the partner is wailing and moaning. "What are you crying about?" says the husband. "I'll get married again."

Funny and Otherwise

A young mother, just returned from India, had engaged a new nurse for her baby. One morning the nurse came to her and said, "I don't know who's the matter, madam, but the little one cries and cries."

The mother thought a moment, then, brightening up, she said, "I remember now. Baby's last nurse was a brown one. You'll find the shoe polish on the third shelf of the kitchen cupboard."

A well-known R.A. noticed a drawing of a fish by a pavement artist and asked what sort of a fish it was supposed to be. "A shark, sir," said the artist. "But you've never seen a shark."

"That's true, but don't some of you Academy chaps paint angels?"

"My friend," said the missionary, "are you travelling the straight and narrow path?"

In silence, the man handed over his card. It read, "Signor Ballanclough, Tightrope Walker."

"How did you lose your job at the dress shop, my dear?"

"Just because of a remark I made after I had tried twenty dresses on a woman. She said, 'I think I'd look nicer in something flatter.' So I asked her why she didn't jump into the river."

A friend called upon a guest at a hotel, knocked and asked him to open the door. "Can't, door's locked," the voice within announced. "Well, unlock it!" the caller requested.

"Can't, lost the key!"

"Great Scott, what will you do if there's a fire?"

"I won't go to it."

"McPherson's a cheat, and I'm no playboy, I don't sit him again."

"How's that?"

"Well hoo could he find his lost ba' on the edge of the green when it was in his pocket?"

A traveller in the middle of the Sahara Desert was amazed to come upon a man in a bathing suit. "Where on earth are you going?" he demanded.

"Swimming," replied the man. "But," said the traveller, "you're a hundred miles from the sea."

Man's Friend

Draft Horse To Make Comeback

REGINA.—Some people may think the horse has had its day—except for racing and butcher shops—but not Hardy Salter of Calgary.

A breeder of Percherons, a heavy draft type, Salter says he'd "just as soon eat my brother or my relatives as eat horse meat."

"A horse is a man's friend," he says.

And he thinks people who believe the draft horse is headed for extinction via meat-packing plants are badly off the trail. Ordinary draft horses, well-broken to harness, brought good prices at horse sales this spring—so good that horse-picking plants had to raise their prices.

Sales at Stettler and Lacombe, Alta.—usually the biggest in the west—were cancelled for lack of animals.

Mr. Salter said work horses are coming back into demand. The Maritime Provinces have banned the use of caterpillar tractors in tree-cutting because the machines crush young trees.

"A horse can get in and out between the trees without breaking them down," Salter says.

He doesn't think the horse will regain its old place on the Prairies as the main source of power. But he says there is a use on every farm for three horses—a draft team and a dual-purpose horse for riding and winter driving. Horses can do innumerable farm chores much cheaper than tractors.

Mr. Salter admits interest in heavy horses has dropped, but he says he doesn't like the suggestion of some cattle breeders that prize money for horse classes at Prairie Fairs be turned over to cattle classes.

"When beef animals were selling at a cent a pound during the depression and you would get $1,000 anywhere for a good stallion, we didn't suggest that the prize money for cattle be turned over to us."

"They didn't ask us horse breeders if we were through."

"I'm not through by a long ways."

Gardiner Believes Damaged Grain Less Than 1950

OTTAWA.—Rt. Hon. J. G. Gardiner, federal minister of agriculture, recently returned from western Canada, was cautious in making any predictions about the effect of the damp weather on the value of the crop.

But he believes the damage due to dampness would not be nearly as severe as had resulted from frost in 1950.

Much of the wheat had been ripe for some time but could not be threshed because it was too damp, he said.

However, he understood that wheat that had sprouted was not nearly as greatly damaged for milling purposes as wheat that had been frozen. On that basis he did not look for a repeat this year of the 1950 situation, when a large proportion of the crop was graded very low.

Wives Get Break In Price Of Rost

VANCOUVER. It was a happy day for some price-conscious housewives here.

They got roasts of beef at 59 cents a pound when the sale price should have been 89 cents.

A mistake in a Woodward's Department Stores advertisement brought the low-priced meat.

The store stood by its bargain and sold 350 pounds at the lower price. The regular price was 97 cents a pound.

Mrs. Ronald Otto from Viking sent in this quick and easy recipe for a One Egg Chocolate Cake:

1 cup sugar
Butter the size of a large egg
1/2 cup cocoa with enough hot water to make a paste. 1 egg
2/3 cup sour milk or buttermilk
1 tsp. soda added to milk, mix
1 tsp. vanilla. 1 1/2 cups flour
Dash of salt.

Mix in order given. Bake about 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Good fresh with whipped cream for dessert or with your favorite icing. Mmmmm, I'm hungry just thinking about it. Thank you, Mrs. Otto.

To make your washing and ironing easier here are a few tips. You have probably thought of several others during the week.

A laundry corner or room with supplies near at hand with tubs, machine and ironing board of proper height and in good condition, helps to ease washing and ironing.

Hanging—shake, then hang straight without wrinkles. Flat pieces should be folded 3" to 6" over the line to prevent bagging. Folding clothes when they are removed from the line will reduce ironing time.

Ironing—don't make wrinkles by rolling sprinkled clothes too tightly. Cover them to keep them damp. Use a clothes hanger and a dry rack for ironed clothes. A mending kit will speed up repairs. Sit to iron or stand on a mat.

FUA Executive Meet In Edmonton September 24-25

A full report of the recent inter-provincial delegation to Ottawa was given by President Young. The question of alternative delivery points for farmers in areas where elevators are congested was discussed. It was decided to endorse the request made by the Saskatchewan Farmers' Union that farmers be given the right to deliver at additional points in such areas.

Arrangements for the Annual Convention were considered, and the program tentatively arranged. It is expected that J. L. Phelps, President of the Saskatchewan Union and Mon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture will be the main guest speakers.

The material for the proposed FUA Program booklet was reviewed by the Executive and the Pres. was authorized to have some printed in booklet form.

Plans for the coming membership drive were discussed at some length and will be communicated to the District Boards at an early date. It is intended that the drive shall start just as soon as harvest is over.

The attitude of the Provincial Government towards the Coarse Grain Marketing Act was discussed and it was decided to endorse the protest made by the Alberta Federation of Agriculture in this connection.

Arrangements were made to have proposed Constitutional Amendments and other important resolutions, intended for the Convention, sent out to all locals as soon as possible.

After dealing with correspondence and much miscellaneous business, the executive adjourned at noon on the 25th.

At a meeting of the standing Resolution Committee of the FUA, held on the same dates, under the chairmanship of R. N. Russell of Athabasca, resolutions received during the year were classified and consolidated for presentation to the Annual Convention.—H. Young Pres. FUA.

CANADA YEAR BOOK 1951 EDITION

There can be few volumes which pack more factual information into some 1,800 pages than does the Canada Year Book. The 1951 edition, like those that have gone before it, describes in a most compact way practically every feature of Canada, both current and historical. It is thus a most valuable reference book, all the more so because its preparation by the Bureau of Statistics ensures that it is accurate.

To list all that it contains would require another book nearly as large, but among the notable features are statistical summaries and tables which say volumes in a small space, a calendar of Canadian events of 1950, a directory of sources of official information, 9 maps and 39 diagrams, and special articles on such subjects as major soil zones and regions, the forest economy and the Indians.

Although the price is a nominal one designed to cover merely the costs of paper, printing and binding, the rise in costs has made necessary an increase from two dollars to three, for the cloth-bound 1951 edition. This is still a small sum for such a mass of information, and for half that sum a paperback edition may be obtained from the bureau at Ottawa by bona fide teachers, students and ministers of religion. For school purposes, in particular, it is a worthwhile investment.

Eleventh Car Won By Viking Man

(From The Viking News)

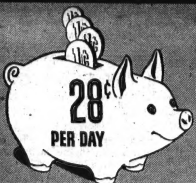

Benny C. Knudson, of Viking, holding membership No. 2862, was awarded the eleventh car in the Car A Month Club at a dance held under auspices of the Senior Hockey Club on Friday, September 28 in the Viking Community Hall. The hall was filled to capacity when the draw was made. Ronnie Brown a former Viking boy, now residing at Boston Bar, B.C., drew the capsule from the revolving barrel containing the 5000 memberships and the membership happened to be No. 2862, held by Mr. Knudson.

The eleventh car was a Chevrolet and the award was a popular one. The new car owner is an employee of the Viking Co-operative creamery and is a married man with a family.

The twelfth car which is the last car in the first series Car A Month Club will be awarded at a dance in the community hall on Friday, October 26, which should prove another gala event.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

Exactly At Midnight

"Just This One Job And Then That Finishes It. Buy A Farm And Settle Down." Caroleo Said To Himself.

By J. V. DERAGON

EVERYTHING would work out perfectly. The time was right. The place was right. At midnight exactly, the train would thunder over the river trestle, and the boys would be waiting below with the Sally III. A rapid unloading job from the side door of the mail car, and they would all be on easy street.

Caroleo huddled up in the lee of the coal boards and tried to stop the fine powdery dust from settling down his back. The locomotive was making time, and the drift up there on top of the round tender was considerable.

Caroleo didn't feel so good about this job. It went deeper than the mere presence of physical discomfort that accompanied the ride. Although, in a way, it did tie in. Because if Jordan didn't insist on it, Caroleo wouldn't feel the way he did.

He pulled out a cigarette, cupped his hands over a match. Before he could get a light the wind whipped it out. He tried three times with the same result. Caroleo swore, and thought of Jordan, sitting back there on the cushions, taking it easy, as always.

The luminous dial of his watch glowed, indicated that it lacked eighteen minutes of midnight. Seven minutes to go. Seven minutes before they would crash through the mail car doors. Caroleo felt in his pocket for the key, assured himself that it was still there.

The tender lurched as the heavy locomotive slammed into a curve, squealing. The whistle roared, deafeningly loud up there on the tender. Caroleo watched the tops of the cars smacking around behind the engine, now and then blotted out by billowing clouds of black smoke.

Just once more, he thought. Just this one job, and then that finishes it. Buy a farm, an estate even, and settle down. That's the stuff. The possibilities were endless, and the key to it all lay in his pocket. The key that would unlock the narrow vestibule door leading into the mail car. They knew just where to look. What bags to take—everything. It was all fixed.

Smooth, that was it. Gotta hand

Sailor Joe Engraves Prayer On Bald Spot

An old master in a dying profession, who claims to have close to 5,000 tattoos across his body, put in a good day's work recently when he tattooed the Lord's Prayer in Chinese on an old scold's scalp. Drilling the ancient symbols into Bert Langton's head was Prof. Simmons, alias Sailor Joe, who has returned to Montreal after spending the summer with the Ringling Bros. Barnum and Bailey Circus. Sailor Joe and Bert Langton, out of Liverpool, met about five years ago when Bert had an "ordinary" tattoo embedded in his flesh. Bert wanted his head tattooed to impress his many friends sailing the China Seas and naturally Joe obliged.

Caroleo got to his knees, and crept along the swaying tender top. The runway was narrow, and studded with manhole covers for filling the engine tender. One slip, and the sides of the tender curved away sharply from either side.

He reached the end, gripped the steel ladder that led downwards. Swirling dust clouds and smoke choked him as he descended. He paused at the bottom and braced himself for the steep leap from the tender sill onto the narrow ledge of the mail car.

The hungry clamour of the wheels reached up and assailed his ears, beating against his brain with a maddening insistence.

Caroleo jumped and steadied himself there, panting. He pulled the gun from his pocket, and with his left hand fished for the key.

Thirty seconds—four—three—two. He twisted the key, seized the handle, and drew his head back, ready to duck.

It stuck for a moment, and then with a crash it burst open. At first Caroleo was conscious only of the glare of lights, and then suddenly he saw a lot of things at once.

He saw the door at the other end of the car fly open as Jordan smashed his way in. He saw the ugly results of two sawed-off shotguns swing in a wide arc and come to rest, lined up on his centre vest button.

But saw the same thing happened to Jordan at the other end of the car. He saw—not mail bags and lockers—but rows of seats.

And then he tore his gaze away from the unfamiliar mail car and looked at the words on the open door—which the darkness had prevented him from reading before he entered. It read, "Prison Car."

The click of steel snapped him back to reality as the manacles encircled his wrists. He heard a dull rumble from the wheels as the train rolled out over the river bridge. Mechanically Caroleo looked at his watch.

It was exactly midnight.

And he had only a brief glimpse of the Sally III's white hull, rocking gently on the dark waters below.

HOW WOULD YOU SOLVE THIS BRAIN-TEASER?

Protagoras taught oratory to law students in ancient Greece. He made a contract with a pupil, stipulating that he was not to be paid until the pupil had won his first case. Then Protagoras asked for his money ahead of time, and the pupil refused to pay. Protagoras promptly sued him. Protagoras felt, he could not lose. If the verdict was in his favor, the pupil would have to pay. If the verdict was against him, the pupil would win his first case—and still would have to pay.

The pupil reasoned that if he won the case, the court would rule he did not have to pay. If he lost, he would not be winning his first case and still would not have to pay.

Unable to reach a verdict, the court adjourned the case for one hundred years.

A BILL FOR THE WEATHER

A Wisconsin farmer, fed up with the harsh winter weather which his weather bureau told him, came from Canada, sent the Dominion bill for half his fuel. This suggests that the Fraser Valley, which lost half its berry crop because the rain it had counted on went to Alberta, might bill Premier Manning for its loss.

DOBBIN DISAPPEARING

OTTAWA—Did Dobbin is gradually disappearing from Canadian farms. The bureau of statistics estimated there were 1,500,000 horses still on Canadian farms last June 1, compared with 1,683,000 a year earlier.

Two Winnipeg Typists Return Home From Tour Of Europe

Hitch-Hiking Was Fine—Rode In Just About Everything, Trucks, Cars, Motorcycles, Ambulances And Fish Carts

WINNIPEG.—A few months ago two pretty Winnipeg girls watched money changers and snake charmers in the Casbah of Tangiers. They rode in a Venetian gondola while their gondolier sang Italian arias. They camped in Norwegian hills and marvelled at the beauty of Rome's Cistine chapel. Now they're home again.

Amelia Zurick and Nancy Halford were typists at the unemployment insurance office in March, 1950, when they decided to see the world.

With $500 each, they booked passage to England and kept going until when they arrived back in Winnipeg. They visited every country in West Europe.

They rode in just about everything—trucks, cars, motorcycles, ambulances and fish carts.

White Men Excluded

Indians Meet For Sun Dance Ritual

They spent a few snowbound days in the Swiss Alps, played gin rummy with the crew of a Marseilles-Tanger ship; slept in a hospital, and once in a convent; did the sidewalk cafes of Paris and the operas and theatres of London, even strolled through Red Vienna.

Arriving in London almost out of funds they went to work long enough to finance a three-week trip to northern England and Scotland. Broke again, they went back to work in London as typists, to finance their first trip to the continent.

They crossed the channel in September, 1950, and by November had called at Belgium, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, and Italy.

"The hitch-hiking was just fine, never any trouble at all," says Amelia. "And there were youth hostels everywhere offering comfortable beds for 25 cents a night."

November, 1950, came and so did winter. The two wanderers were running low on money. They went back to London again. All winter they worked and saved and in June they re-crossed the channel.

This time they hitched their way down Europe's west coast, crossed north Africa, then back through France, Italy and Germany to the Scandinavian countries, with a few leisurely days on the French Riviera.

Most colorful place of all they thought was North Africa. "There you see the very old and the very new side by side. You see donkeys and sleek cars; yelliced native women beside ladies in the most modern dress; and new, up-to-date buildings next to shacks."

They met six travelling Canadians during their whole trip.

Plans when they left Winnipeg called for a one-year trip. "But we'd get to one place, say Vienna, and the people would recommend other places for us to see. We just kept going, and we were never disappointed," Nancy said.

They saw the King and Queen on the Festival of Britain, and saw Princess Elizabeth at the festival. They had tea and talked with Barbara Ann Scott at Canada House in London.

They'll start looking for jobs. "We may go again some day. We'd rather like to see South Africa and Australia."

What was their "return" impression of Canada? "Prosperous. Everybody's got cars and telephones and refrigerators and nice clothes and everything."

Final Payment Made For Beets

WINNIPEG, Man.—The cheque were recently sent out from the office of the Manitoba Sugar Company Limited covering the final payment of $2.20 a ton for the 1950 sugar beet crop. Total payment a ton reached $15.50, compared with $14.33 the previous year.

Payments for the year's crop totalled $2,309,500.
